DOC Weldable bands:

These locally-manufactured bands are injection-moulded and have extra material along the split that is melted to form a join using a small battery-operated soldering iron.

The 3.75 mm bands were specifically designed and tested for use on hihi, and 3.1 mm (6 mm height) bands for robins. Requests for use on similar species will be considered but must be trialled.

We also have DOC weldable bands with a slot for an RFID tag (transponder).

NOTE:

When ordering colour bands, please provide the following additional information:

- FALCON Project name
- Species
- Locality of intended use
- · Colour banding schema:
- o number of colours used
- o cohort marking
- number of bands per legused and proposed combinations

The Banding Office coordinates colour banding – you may be restricted from using certain colour combinations if these have been combinations if these have been used by another project on the same species within a given timeframe or region that may overlap with your proposed colour combinations.

3-D printed bird legs for banding training

Note that these represent only the bony part of the leg, not the muscle and skin, so are somewhat thinner than those of a live bird. Legs can be painted using nail varnish and sewn onto puppets for a more realistic training tool (puppets in pics not for sale).

Price listed is for one leg only per species – left and right options are listed where available and can be ordered separately.
